CTG LOGISTICS SOLUTIONS IS THE FIRST VOICE TECHNOLOGY PROVIDER TO QUALIFY THE NEW CK3 RUGGED MOBILE COMPUTER BY INTERMEC TECHNOLOGIES CORPORATION

BUFFALO, N.Y. — November 10, 2008 — CTG Logistics Solutions, a business unit of CTG (NASDAQ: CTGX), an international information technology (IT) solutions and services company, announced today that its CTGTALK™ Voice Productivity Solutions software, powered by CTG's Vulcan Voice, is the first voice technology software qualified to support speech recognition and voice synthesis for the new Intermec CK3 rugged mobile computer. In addition to the CK3, CTGTALK is compatible with the entire family of Intermec products, including the CV60, CV30, CN3, CK60, and CK61.

The compact and rugged Intermec CK3 mobile computer was specifically designed for warehouse operations and incorporates many capabilities previously unavailable in one device, including:

- 1D and 2D barcode scanning, both up-close and far-away, in any orientation and under varied lighting conditions. Offers unmatched performance on poor quality and damaged barcodes.
- 802.11a/b/g Wireless LAN Radio with Cisco® Compatible Extensions (CCX) certification
- VoIP communications supported
- Speech recognition capable
- Bluetooth® radio communications
- Handheld or “gun” deployment formats
- RFID Reader option
- Support for a line of compatible Intermec mobile printers

“After weeks of rigorous testing in many acoustic environments, CTG Logistics Solutions is pleased to be the first provider of voice solutions able to support the latest cutting edge mobile device by Intermec Technologies,” Michael Colson, Senior Vice President, IT Solutions of CTG, said. “Our CTGTALK Voice Productivity Solution Team has qualified the Intermec CK3 for use with CTG’s high volume voice picking software for the warehouse and stockyard. CTG already has speech-enabled CK3 units ready to ship to customers on demand. We are also pleased to add the CK3 to the full line of Intermec products that have been speech-enabled by CTG.”
